The Low Down. The file input type is used to identify resource(s) in the file structure, upload a file, or create a resource to upload. The file input element provides a GUI to select a file, and then represents a list of files that are selected with the option to change resource(s) until form submission. The multiple attribute allows more than one resource to be selected.

This approach has a potential flaw. The client's browser announces the mime type of a file. I have an accept set to excel mime types. When a user who doesn't have Excel installed tries to upload an XLS, the browser interprets the extension as an application/octet stream because there is no definition for that extension.
